1. Historical Centre of Gaia

The historic centre of Gaia lies between the contemporary cityscape and the more tranquil medieval quarters closer to the riverside. This charming area is filled with centuries-old buildings and narrow cobblestone streets. Explore its well preserved churches and traditional markets, including the famous port wine cellars to taste some of the region's finest wines. Take a stroll through the winding streets and soak in the rich history and culture that make Gaia a must-visit destination in Portugal.

2. Dom Luiz I Bridge (lower deck)

Across the Douro River spans the majestic Dom Luiz I bridge, standing as an iconic symbol of Porto and Gaia. Designed by Gustave Eiffel, this double-decker marvel seamlessly connects the cities of Porto and Gaia. As you walk through its elaborate lattice of ironwork, you will be treated by views of the meandering “golden” river below while the upper deck offers some breathtaking panoramic views of the cityscape and the distant horizon beyond. Whether it is night or day, the Dom Luiz I bridge never fails to captivate visitors with its timeless elegance and historical significance.

3. Riverside of Porto - Ribeira do Porto

Porto's riverside, where the Douro River flows through living history and culture. Along the narrow cobblestone streets, you'll find the Ribeira district, a UNESCO World Heritage Site filled with traditional azulejos. The riverside of Porto used to be the city's main port and acted as a bustling hub of trade for port wine. The rich past and vibrant present of Porto can be felt in this area with many waterfront and charming restaurants and cafés ready with traditional cuisine.

4. Stock Exchange Palace - Palácio da Bolsa

The “Palácio da Bolsa” is a magnificent neoclassical building housing the city's former Stock Exchange. Admission prices vary depending on the type of visit. For a standard guided tour, adult tickets typically range from 10 to 15 euros. Specialized tours or access to additional areas may incur extra charges. However, the awe-inspiring architecture, lavish interiors and rich history make the Palácio da Bolsa a worthwhile investment for visitors seeking to immerse themselves in Porto's cultural heritage.

5. Flowers Street - Rua das Flores

Rua das Flores, one of Porto's most emblematic streets, serves as a practical route connecting Porto's riverside area to the city's urban center. Starting at the historical district of Ribeira, it gradually ascends towards the city center, providing convenient access to landmarks such as São Bento Railway Station and Porto Cathedral. Along the street, visitors encounter a mix of shops, cafes, and residential buildings, reflecting the area's transition from a waterfront neighborhood to a bustling urban hub. This route provides a glimpse into the city's daily life and commerce.

6. Vitória ViewPoint - Miradouro da Vitória

This viewpoint offers an unexpected and captivating perspective of Porto's cityscape. Situated atop the hilly streets of the Vitória neighborhood, it provides stunning panoramic views of the city's iconic red rooftops, medieval structures and the Douro River. Unlike official viewpoints, this hidden gem offers a more intimate and unobstructed vista, allowing visitors to soak in the charm of Porto without the crowds.

7. Virtudes ViewPoint - Miradouro das Virtudes

This viewpoint is very popular as it is perched atop a hill in the vibrant Miragaia neighborhood, offering a scenic spot over the western part of the city centre. Unlike other places, Miradouro das Virtudes offers a more serene atmosphere, making it an ideal place to relax and enjoy the beauty of Porto in peace. There are some typical restaurants in the area, fantastic for a sunset illuminated meal.

8. Doomed Love Square - Largo Amor de Perdição

Largo Amor de Perdição is named after the novel "Amor de Perdição" (Doomed Love) by Portuguese author Camilo Castelo Branco. He was imprisoned in the adjacent old jail, once a symbol of authoritarian rule, now transformed into a museum. On the other side of the central garden (Jardim da Cordoaria) is the majestic focal building of the University of Porto with the intellectual legacy of the institution. Amidst this historical backdrop, a vibrant nightlife scene can also be found, making it a captivating destination where the echoes of the past harmonise with the rhythms of modern life in Porto.

9. Clérigos Church

The Clérigos Church and Tower are architectural treasures of Porto and epitomize the city's historical significance. The church, an 18th-century masterpiece adorned with intricate carvings, sits prominently in the heart of Porto's city centre. The Clérigos Tower, designed by Nicolau Nasoni, offers panoramic views of the cityscape. Visitors can climb the tower's narrow staircase to enjoy breathtaking vistas of Porto. Admission prices vary, with adult tickets typically ranging from 5 to 10 euros. These landmarks are now iconic symbols of the city of Porto.

10. Galeria de Paris Street

Rua da Galeria de Paris is a bustling street renowned for its art galleries, markets and thrift stores during the day and a vibrant nightlife. Lined with an array of bars, restaurants and clubs, it offers a lively atmosphere where locals and tourists gather to enjoy the city's social scene. Rua da Galeria de Paris is a dynamic destination that captivates visitors day and night.

11. Liberty Square

Avenida dos Aliados (Avenue of the Allies) encompasses the Praça da Liberdade (Liberty Square), commemorating Portugal's aid in World War I and the regained freedom after authoritarian fascist rule. Praça da Liberdade serves as a central gathering place adorned with statues and fountains, while Avenida dos Aliados is a majestic boulevard lined with impressive buildings, including Porto's City Hall. The avenue serves as a central axis from which the city's historic quarter spreads out in a grid-like pattern of charming traditional streets characterized by their cobblestone pavements and colourful azulejos.

12. São Bento Railway Station

The São Bento Railway Station is a central transportation hub in Porto for municipal and interregional services. It acts as a gateway to cities like Aveiro, Braga, Guimarães, as well as the picturesque Douro Valley. The station is adorned with exquisite azulejos, offering a captivating journey through Portuguese history and depicting events, such as the Conquest of Ceuta which marked the beginning of Portugal's overseas expansion and maritime supremacy.

13. Porto Cathedral

Sé do Porto or Porto Cathedral, dates back to the 12th century, is a beacon of faith and of architectural magnificence, but also acts as a gateway to the city's inner core. Situated atop a hill overlooking Porto's historic centre and the Douro river, the cathedral is accessed via winding streets and staircases. Adjacent to the cathedral lies the Episcopal Palace, and both buildings can be accessed with admission prices varying from 5 to 10 euros. This Cathedral is also the starting place for many pilgrims for the spiritual pilgrimages to Santiago or Fátima.

14. Dom Luiz I Bridge (upper deck)

Across the Douro River spans the majestic Dom Luiz I bridge, standing as an iconic symbol of Porto and Gaia. Designed by Gustave Eiffel, this double-decker marvel seamlessly connects the cities of Porto and Gaia. As you walk through its elaborate lattice of ironwork, you will be treated by views of the meandering “golden” river below while the upper deck offers some breathtaking panoramic views of the cityscape and the distant horizon beyond. Whether it is night or day, the Dom Luiz I bridge never fails to captivate visitors with its timeless elegance and historical significance.

15. Morro Garden - Cable Car Ride

Jardim do Morro is a park overlooking the Douro River in Gaia. It was built in the early 20th century as part of urban beautification efforts. Adjacent to it stands the historic Mosteiro da Serra do Pilar, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, dating back to the 16th century. The garden, with its privileged views over the Douro, hosts routine concerts and is widely renowned as a popular spot to witness breathtaking sunsets. There is also a cable car that provides panoramic views of the city and easy access to the riverside of Gaia.

In the case of a rainy day, the Walking tour will be replaced by:
